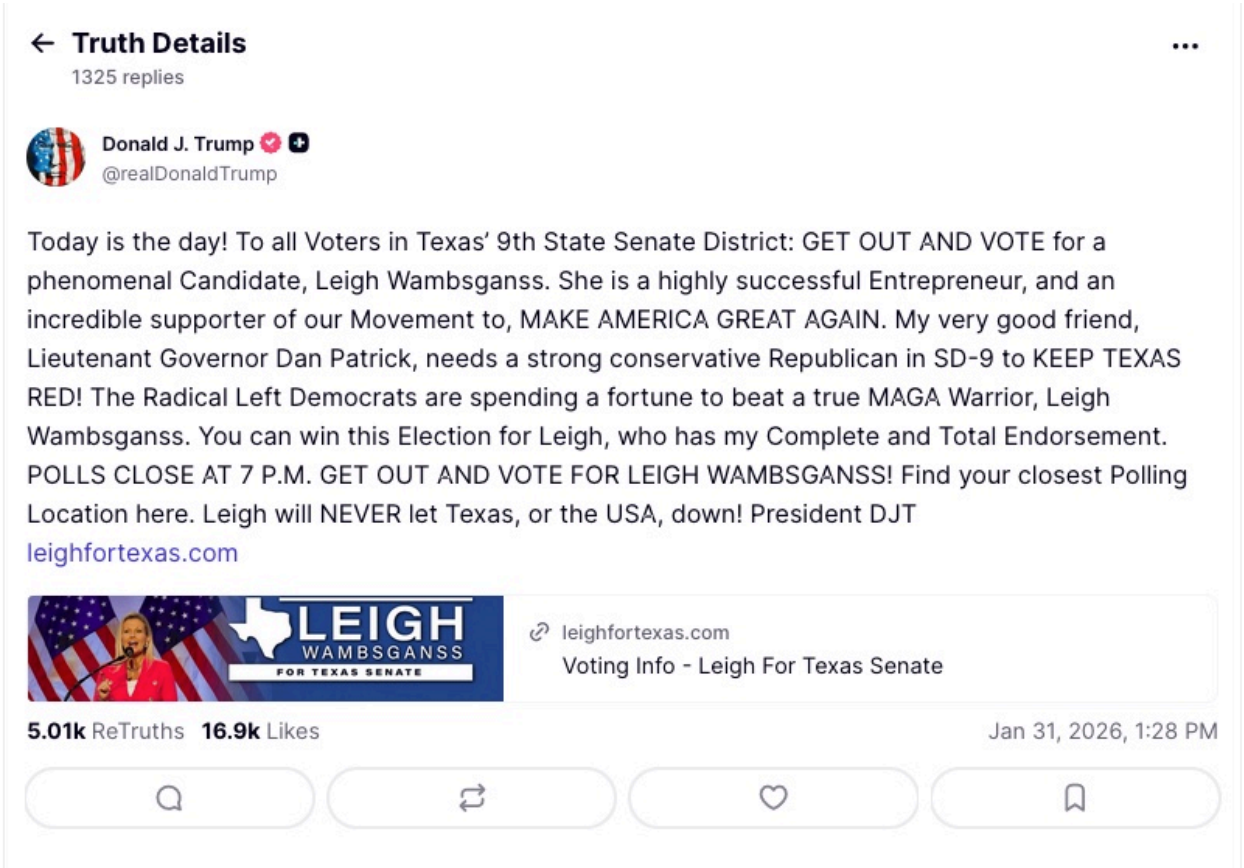
February 01, 2026: On the Midterms and a Future Governed by Militurds

As for those posting their 'Endorsed by Trump and Abbott' credentials, take note (they're worthless):

1. Donald's endorsement 'success' was nothing more than picking the favorites in the first place, but now that his party has gone down the 'tubes' his 'favorites' are long shots at best.



Rehmet's overperformance in the fall stoked concerns for the GOP, and a number of prominent party leaders, including Gov. Greg Abbott (R), intervened in the race in an effort to boost Wambsganss.

"When a grassroots union organizer like Taylor Rehmet overperforms by almost 20 points and forces a runoff, it couldn't be any clearer that voters are tired of Republican bullshit," Texas Democratic Party Chairman Kendall Scudder said in a statement after the November race.

Rehmet's victory is sure to fuel Democratic optimism heading into the midterms, where the party is hoping to flip the House and potentially even the Senate amid growing anxiety over the economy and anger over Trump's immigration policies.

Donald dedicated three 'truth' social posts to her campaign and she lost by how much? It wasn't even close.

> Trump had made a late push for Wambsganss, posting on social media in support of her campaign three times in the last two days of the race.
>
> Democrats flipped more than 20 state legislative seats in special or regularly scheduled elections last year. Most recently, in December they won a Georgia district that Trump had carried by about 12 points.
>
> > Democrats scored a stunning upset on Saturday in a special election runoff for Texas Senate, according to a projection from Decision Desk HQ, giving the party a major boost ahead of the November midterms.
> >
> > Fort Worth Democrat Taylor Rehmet, a machinist and Air Force veteran, defeated Southlake Republican Leigh Wambsganss to fill the vacant state Senate District 9.

But seriously, Demonrats, you really trust an Air Force veteran to carry out the true and correct wishes of We, the People?

You all have so much to learn.

When can we expect to see the Militurds disgraced far enough that they would not dare to run for office in front of us knowledgeable citizens?

Expose these losers for their truth! They entered the military for a paycheck and have no issues with waging illegal and illegitimate warfare against other countries and private citizens while collecting their government sponsored paychecks!

MILITURDS, GET OFF MY BALLOT BOX!
